

APPALACHIAN TRAIL 2,000-MILER APPLICATION

The Appalachian Trail Conservancy (ATC) recognizes a hiker who reports completion of the entire Appalachian Trail (A.T.) as a “2,000-miler”—an enduring anachronism based upon the original estimated length of the Trail.

ATC policy is to operate on an honor system, assuming that, if you apply for 2,000-miler status, you have made an honest effort to walk the entire Trail—as a thru-hiker or in sections. In the event of an emergency, such as a flood, a forest fire, or an impending storm, blue blazed trails or officially required roadwalks are viable substitutes for the white-blazed route. And, while sequence, direction, length of time, or whether you carried a pack are not considered, the ATC holds high expectations of 2,000-milers that include treating the natural environment, A.T. communities, other hikers, and our agency partners—whose land the A.T. passes through—with kindness, respect, and cooperation. Respect for these standards by all applicants is essential to the continuation of ATC's practice of recognizing end-to-end hikers in any fashion. If you meet these standards, please complete the form below.
